This will be the second Community Shred Day held this year at Home Federal.

"We want to help protect everyone in our community from the devastating consequences of identity theft."

Materials that can be shredded include old tax records, medical information, bills, unsolicited credit card applications, old bank statements, credit cards, CDs and other financial records. Materials may be stapled, paper clipped or bound, including large 3-ring binders.

"We're encouraging people to bring all the personal and confidential documents they no longer need," Lochmann added. "We will provide free refreshments and consumer information on identity theft prevention for all participants."
